A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF THE CUSTOMARY LAWS OF KENYA
(WITH SPECIAL REFERENCE TO THE LAWS OF WRONGS)

Richard L. Abel*

This bibliography was developed in the course of research in the customary laws of wrongs in Kenya, and is therefore most thorough with respect to that subject. However, the nature of customary law is such that wrongs do not form a sharply differentiated substantive area. Moreover, other bodies of law--e.g., those pertaining to the family, to property rights, to procedural matters--clearly bear on the treatment of wrongs. Consequently, most sources cover a broad subject matter, and in seeking to include all those having any bearing on the laws of wrongs, I believe I have been reasonably comprehensive. Two areas were deliberately excluded. Non-customary laws--received English law, adopted Indian Acts, Moslem or Hindu law--where it has no bearing on customary practices, is not referred to. Within customary law itself, the rules of land law have only been dealt with incidentally, for the area is sufficiently specialized to constitute a separable subject matter, with an extensive bibliography of its own. (See especially Sorrenson, M.P.K. Land Reform in the Kikuyu Country: a study in Government Policy, pp. 253-56. New York: Oxford Univ. P. for E. Afr. Inst. Soc. Res., 1967.)

*Assistant Professor of Law, Yale Law School. B.A., 1962, Harvard College; LL.B., 1965, Columbia Law School.

This research was supported by a Marshall Scholarship in London and by a Foreign Area Fellowship in Kenya. I am extremely grateful to Professor A.N. Allott and Mr. Eugene Cotran, both of the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, for their help, and for allowing me access to the files of the Restatement of African Law project. I am also grateful to Mr. T.A. Watts, Assistant to the Registrar of the High Court of Kenya, for his generous assistance in Nairobi.

Two other invaluable resources for study should be mentioned here. The Kenya National Archives contain an extensive collection of the records of colonial administration: District and Provincial Political Record Books, Annual Reports, and Handing-over Reports. (See Government of Kenya, Archives Microfilming Programme, Section I: Provincial and District Annual Reports, 75 pp. and map. Cyclostyled.) These frequently include statements of substantive rules and procedures, as well as discussions of problems in administering customary law (e.g., whether or not to impose a statute of limitations). Much of this material has been microfilmed and stored in the Syracuse University Library, from which it may be borrowed. (See Fedha, Nathan and John B. Webster A Catalogue of the Kenya National Archives Collection on Microfilm at Syracuse University; Syracuse: Program of Eastern African Studies, 1967; Gregory, Robert G., Leon Spencer and Robert Maxon, A Guide to the Kenya National Archives. Syracuse: Program of Eastern African Studies, forthcoming 1969.)

Second, the proceedings of the African Courts and of Appeals Magistrates (now District Magistrate's Courts) have been recorded for about a decade, generally in English but sometimes in Swahili. These reports include the testimony of parties and witnesses, a reasoned judgment, and the steps taken to execute it. They are filed in the highest court to have been seized of the case. In addition, Mr. T.A. Watts, while African Courts Officer (1963-67), collected about 5,000 copies of the judgments of Appeals Magistrates, which can now be consulted in the Law Courts, Nairobi.

Finally, several other bibliographies may assist the investigator:

The only significant omission of a tribe is the Somali, the reason being that practically no one has studied the Somali of Kenya, whereas those of the Somali Republic (q.v.) have been extensively described. In organizing the data by tribal categories, I have included some brief information to help identify the tribe:

Name (with alternate spellings, and constituent groups)
(Population according to the most recent census). Principal home districts.

Following usual practice, I have dropped prefixes from the tribal names, e.g., Bantu: wa-, a-, aba-; Nilotic: jo-; Nilo-Hamitic: el-.

In the references which follow I have used a number of abbreviations.
