

SUPPLEMENT: MEMORABILIA ET NOTABILIA.

The plans and specifications for the building of the new structure in front of the Yale Law School have recently been accepted, and the work of tearing down the house now occupied by Corbey Court and the construction of the new building will be begun as soon as possible after Commencement—probably June 29th. The architects of the new Law School building are Cady, Berg & See, of Union Square, New York city.

The new building will be three stories in height and will be finished in Indiana limestone. The first story will include a lecture room with a seating capacity of about two or three hundred, the large main entrance and two offices for Dean Wayland. A part of the space on this floor will also be taken up by a covered passageway leading to the side and rear of the building. The second story, occupying the whole front, about ninety-three feet, will be devoted to a room for lectures and for all purposes connected with the department of the Law School requiring a large audience hall. This room will seat between five and six hundred people. The third floor will be used as an addition to the library.

The exact plans of interior decoration have not yet been decided upon, but they will be selected so as to harmonize perfectly with the building. The building will have a ninety-three foot frontage on Elm street and will be about forty or fifty feet deep.

The anniversary exercises of the Law School will differ in no essential from the proceedings of last year. At 1 p. m. on Monday, June 26, the annual meeting of the Yale Law School Alumni Association will be held in the Law School, when luncheon will be served. The Alumni will then march in a body to the College Street Hall, where the Townsend Prize speaking will take place at 3 p. m. An address on "The Advancement in Jurisprudence During the Nineteenth Century" will be delivered to the graduating classes by the Hon. John W. Griggs, LL.D., Attorney-General of the United States.

The course of lectures on the W. L. Storrs foundation were delivered this year by Justice John M. Harlan, of the United States Supreme Court. Upon Wednesday evening, May 24, a reception was given in his honor by Judge Simeon E. Baldwin at his residence on Wall street. Besides the members of the faculty of the Law School there were among the guests President Timothy Dwight, Dean Wright, of the Academic Department; a number of the prominent officials of the state; and the members of D. C. L. class of the Law School. Judge Baldwin was assisted in receiving by the Honorable Francis Wayland, Dean of the Law School. The course was one of the best ever given upon the Storrs foundation, one reason, undoubtedly, being the importance and popularity of Justice Harlan's subject, which was "The Constitution of the United States."

The course of lectures under the auspices of the Kent Club were omitted during the past year, but the routine work of the club has been most successful, and never have the interests of debating in the Law School reached a higher pitch. The Kent Club was represented in both the intercollegiate debates, C. P. Kitchel being a member of the team against Princeton and F. A. Lord debating upon the team which opposed Harvard, while W. D. Makepeace was first alternate against Harvard. As usual, there has been the award of diplomas of approbation to those members of the club who have manifested a praiseworthy interest in the work of the organization, and by their zeal have so gained a corresponding personal advantage. But these diplomas were given only to members who graduate from the School this year, and to secure absolute impartiality, the award was made by the following committee, composed of Junior members of the Club: W. D. Makepeace, C. P. Kitchel, T. J. Wallace, Jr., R. P. Clark and B. F. Nead. This committee unanimously selected these men as the recipients of the diplomas: Thomas Francis Noone, Jacob Bertram Ullman, William Carmody Keane, Louis Michael Sonnenberg, Charles Henry Harriman and Simon Phillips Northrop.

The men chosen on a basis of thesis composition to speak for the Townsend prize were announced June 3d. The men and the subjects discussed by them are: Charles William Birely, of New Haven, Conn., on "The Position of the United States in the Family of Nations;" Edward Laurence Smith, of Hartford, Conn., on "Bismarck's Services in Extending Popular Representation as Compared with Gladstone's;" Theobald Mathew Connor, of Northampton, Mass., on "The Anglo-American Alliance," and Charles Heitler Studinski, of Pueblo, Col., on "The Czar's Proposal for Disarmament."

The annual debate for the Wayland Prizes was held in Osborn Hall on the evening of June 5th. The subject debated upon was, "Resolved, That an exchange of the British Indies for the Philippines would be beneficial both to the United States and to England." As usual, the contestants were chosen at a preliminary selective debate which took place on May 29th. Of those chosen the following spoke upon the affirmative: S. P. Northrop, J. B. Ullman, A. S. Campbell and N. A. Smyth, while these spoke on the negative of the question: C. S. Briggs, C. P. Kitchell, F. A. Lord and H. W. Fisher. The judges who awarded the prizes were Reverend E. S. Lines, D. D., Reverend F. M. R. Luckey and Mr. Charles E. Curtiss. After deliberation they announced their decision, which was: first prize of $50, to Jacob Bertram Ullman, of New Haven, Conn.; second prize of $30, to Nathan Ayer Smyth, of New Haven, Conn.; third prize of $20, to Franklin Atkins Lord, of Moorhead, Minn.

The library of the Law School has been increased by many volumes during the past year. Hon. N. D. Sperry, of New Haven, has made considerable gifts, as has also the Hon. S. R. Betts, of New York City. Recently Henry C. Robinson, of Hartford, has given the Complete Rebellion Records (Moore Edition), while besides a comprehensive collection of works on Roman Law, Librarian Philip P. Wells has obtained Dillon on "Law and Jurisprudence of England and America," and a ten volume edition of the "Messages and Papers of the Presidents of the United States," which is published by authority of Congress and covers President Cleveland's second term.
